

B·O·O·K·S

Spring 1938

DUKE UNIVERSITY PRESS
DURHAM, N. C.

---

DUKE UNIVERSITY PRESS
DURHAM, N. C.

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.

Mr. Henry R. Dwire,
Duke University,
Durham, N. C.

A Gentleman of the Old Natchez Region: Benjamin L. C. Wailes

By CHARLES SACKETT SYDNOR

THIS FINE biographical study centers about Benjamin Wailes whose diary affords the source material for lively chapters of concrete detail. This makes it a volume appealing to an intelligent public keenly curious about life in the Old South as well as to students of southern culture and history.

Wailes' record extends from 1807 until his death in 1862, a record closely related to the dominant movements in the history of the old Southwest: the evolution of a society with frontier traits into a settled plantation system, the introduction and modification of the intellectual interests of the region, and the crumbling of the established order under the impact of civil war.

The Natchez region well deserves the attention that has been directed to it in the past few years, for it is one of the distinctive and picturesque parts of the Old South. The chief contribution of this biography is that it affords a better understanding of the region and of the significance of its culture.

Pp. xii, 337. Illustrated.

$3.00

The Tobacco Kingdom — Plantation, Market, and Factory in Virginia and North Carolina, 1800-1860

By JOSEPH CLARKE ROBERT

HERE IS A book important to many: to historians interested in the effect of a great industry upon antebellum society, to economists concerned with trade relations between the tobacco district and the North, to all engaged in the cultivation, marketing, or manufacture of tobacco.

The study is concentrated on a distinct economic region in a well-defined era. The introductory chapter discusses the colonial background. Part I, "Raising the Crop", includes an analysis of the tobacco plantation and a survey of methods of culture. Part II, "Marketing the Leaf", traces the development of trade routes, changes in modes of transportation, mechanism of the inspection system, evolution of sale methods, nature of the leaf export trade, and movement of prices and production. Part III, "Manufacturing", deals with the growth of plug and twist manufacturing and outlines methods of manufacture evolving from the simple to the complex.

Altogether the book is a full, accurate, and complete account of the tobacco kingdom during the first six decades of the last century.

Pp. xii, 275. Illustrated.

$3.00

Church-State Relationships in North Carolina Since 1776

By LUTHER L. GOBBEL

TWO PRINCIPLES deeply rooted in our democratic life are those of religious freedom and of public responsibility for education for citizenship. Because of the functioning of these principles, America has remained comparatively free from issues involving church-state relationships. Mutual respect and conciliation have marked the spirit with which the two entities have dealt with education.

Dr. Gobbel tells the story of church-state relationships in North Carolina concretely, yet with objectivity and restraint. With access to the records in state, university, and denominational libraries covering over a century and a half of educational and ecclesiastical history in North Carolina, he has made the volume a carefully authenticated account extending from the beginning of the commonwealth in 1776 to the present.

The book will help Americans generally to understand more fully the principles which underlie the successful cooperation of church and state in that most important of all things that we desire for our children—adequate education.

Pp. 264.

$3.00

The Unextinguished Hearth: Shelley and His Contemporary Critics

By NEWMAN I. WHITE

HERE IS A VOLUME compiled by an eminent Shelley authority providing for the first time the materials for a really reliable estimate of the relations between Shelley and his critics, definitely correcting an existing mistaken view of the subject.

An introductory chapter explains the tone of early nineteenth century criticism in terms of inherited tendencies and contemporary fears and obsessions. The bulk of the volume consists of the contemporary notices of Shelley, over a hundred in number, ranging in length from incidental remarks of half a page to separately-printed books. Two summaries of the printed references to Shelley, one alphabetical, one chronological, together provide a complete and convenient summary of Shelley's appearances before the public of his day.

The author adds much to the value and utility of the book with brief descriptive and historical comments on some ninety periodicals. This is a "must" book in the libraries of admirers of Shelley, in those of teachers of English poetry, literary criticism, and periodical literature; and it is an indispensable reference book for college and university libraries.

Pp. xvi, 397. Illustrations

$3.00

*Journal of a Cruise to the Pacific Ocean, 1842-1844, in the Frigate
"United States", with Notes on Herman Melville* edited by Charles
R. Anderson

Reproduction of a petty officer's manuscript diary kept on board the flagship of the Pacific Squadron on a cruise to the South Sea islands. Contains the fullest published account by an eye witness of the capture of Monterey. Herman Melville was a member of the crew for the last half of the cruise.

Pp. vi, 143. 11 illustrations.

$2.50

The United States and the Republic of Panama by William D. McCain

The narrative amply illustrates the fact that Panama, tiny, restless, and weak as it is, is one of the most important satellites of the United States. The main threads of Panamanian-American relations from the "big stick" policy of one Roosevelt to the "good neighbor" policy of another Roosevelt have been followed in a definitive manner. Pp. xv, 278.

$3.00

John Carlisle Kilgo, President of Trinity College, 1894-1910 by Paul
Neff Garber

This book portrays the outstanding life of a Southern educator in a period of economic and political transition. His conviction was that an educational institution should make public sentiment rather than be subservient to it. His championship of academic freedom affected the future of every Southern college. Pp. xi, 412. Illustrated.

$3.00

*American Writers, A Series of Papers Contributed to Blackwood's
Magazine (1824-1825)* by John Neal edited by Fred Lewis Pattee

This series of papers was the first American product strong enough to break into the British reviews, and it also has the added distinction of being the first attempt anywhere at a history of American literature. Neal had at times that rarest of powers, critical vision. For three years he filled the English magazines with his writing and molded English thinking of American literature.

Pp. viii, 261.

$3.00

Machiavelli's "Prince" and Its Forerunners

By ALLAN H. GILBERT

STUDIES of Machiavelli in the last forty years have been so numerous that the bibliography requires a volume by itself, yet slight attention has been given to his affinities with other writers of somewhat the same sort such as Thomas Aquinas, Petrarch, Erasmus, and Guillaume Budé. With the decline of kingly power, books of advice to the king declined too; only a production with intrinsic vigor such as that possessed by Machiavelli's "Prince" could survive from among a possible thousand of similar works.

This volume by Dr. Gilbert is in the form of a running commentary on Machiavelli's little book, taking it up by chapters and indicating the similarities between it and its predecessors, of which the most important and widely distributed have been treated.

The first purpose of the book is to present an important and neglected part of Machiavelli's intellectual environment; its higher purpose is to interpret and, to some extent, evaluate the work. The Machiavelli who emerges is no mysterious figure, but one who had read, observed, and thought, and at the end poured into an old form ideas new and old such as his critical judgment approved.

Pp. vii, 252. Illustrated.

$3.00

Axial Bifurcation in Serpents

By BERT CUNNINGHAM

COVERING all available data from Aristotle to the present, Dr. Cunningham's book presents for the first time a comprehensive compilation on two-headed, two-tailed, and Siamese twin snakes.

More than a mere catalogue, the book contains not only the names and descriptions of the snakes taken from sources, but also any published figures which accompanied the original descriptions. The 134 illustrations include photographs of the external appearance and X-ray photographs of the bony structures of specimens previously described without such figures. Many of the 200 specimens are here described and figured for the first time.

The work is far more comprehensive than anything heretofore published on the subject, including more than twice the number of specimens thought to have been described, as estimated by all recent writers.

Pp. vii, 116. Illustrated.

$2.50

---

ORDER BLANK

DUKE UNIVERSITY PRESS
DURHAM, N. C.

Gentlemen:

I send herewith $..... for which please send me (postage prepaid):

- ..... Sydnor: A Gentleman of the Old Natchez Region
- ..... Robert: The Tobacco Kingdom
- ..... Gobbel: Church-State Relationships in North Carolina
- ..... White: The Unextinguished Hearth
- ..... Gilbert: Machiavelli's "Prince" and Its Forerunners
- ..... Cunningham: Axial Bifurcation in Serpents

NAME.....

ADDRESS.....